The Laboratory of Materials & Catalysis

The Laboratory of Materials and Catalysis (LMC) at the University of Sidi Bel Abbes is composed of five specialized research teams:

1. Development and characterization of natural materials: Applications in catalysis, adsorption, and environment.
2. Environment and health.
3. Waste valorization and sustainable development.
4. Systems of polymer and composite nano/microparticles for pharmaceutical and environmental applications.
5. Physicochemical behaviour of materials, environment, and health.

Each research team focuses on the synthesis and characterization of new materials and their applications in analytical and pharmaceutical chemistry.
